

E-NEWS: URI/AAUP PART-TIME FACULTY UNITED!

MARCH 2007

ISSUE #4

A MESSAGE FOR URI'S ADJUNCT FACULTY

THE BENEFITS OF WORKING COLLABORATIVELY IN A COLLECTIVE BARGAINING UNIT INCLUDE:

- Health care insurance
- Equitable salary
- Participation in a retirement plan
- Job stability
- Seniority rights for course assignments
- Travel funds
- Recognition and acceptance as a vital and indispensable component in working to achieve URI's national, regional, and state-wide goals

Stated somewhat differently, the list of benefits detailed above are benefits URI's Adjunct Faculty currently do not have because they do not have union representation.

It should be noted that almost ALL other groups at URI are represented by collective bargaining units. This includes tenured and tenure-track faculty, middle management, secretaries, support staff, janitorial and maintenance personnel, and all graduate students in all disciplines across the university.

(KINGSTON & PROVIDENCE)

INVEST IN YOURSELF!!

As a part-time member of the University of Rhode Island Faculty, I declare my intention to join the American Association of University Professors. I further stipulate that I wish to establish a separate bargaining unit of the American Association of University Professors for part-time faculty at the University of Rhode Island.
